MARKET OUTLOOK

Sugar kept its strength during all Day, but lost close to the settlement prices with news from Brazilian crop (with UNICA report referring to the last two weeks of June saying that the crushing 40 m tons and ATR close to 135) and Indian (with precipitations of rain in most of the agriculture area) impacting the market. The players clearly did some profit taking pressuring the sugar down that worked with a lighter volume. Actually sugar seems to follow the macro scenario that shows a crude and equity marked practically stagnated in the past few days. The dollar index still works negative under 85 losing -0,75%, but not enough to support commodities prices. Raw settled today 1 point under on October and refined -$0,10 as well, today October became the most trades month I LDN.
